English

like - don't like

These are used to demonstrate that you are fond of or not fond of something:

I like coffee, but I don't like tea.

I like ice cream, but I don't like milk.

likes - doesn't like

These are used to demonstrate that someone else is fond of or not fond of something:

Joe likes cats, but he doesn't like dogs.

Eva doesn't like dresses, but she likes trousers.

This is how you form the plural:

boy boys parrot parrots monkey monkeys appple

apples toes

singular + s

Careful:

toe

If there is a consonant in front of the "y", the plural is formed by adding ies:

stories story

strawberries strawberry

Iollies Iolly

singular: y -> plural: ies

If a word ends in "ch, x, s, sh", the plural is formed by adding es:

class classes box boxes inch inches

singular + es

toothbrush toothbrushes

like - likes - don't - doesn't

Toni likes bananas, but he doesn't like oranges.

I like sweets, but don't like chocolate.

The monkey likes ice cream and lollies.

Nora likes reading, but she doesn't like comics.

I like apple juice, but I don't like orange juice.

The cat doesn't like fish, but likes birds.

I don't like school uniforms.

Toni doesn't like coffee, but I like it.

